1. Open up Google Chrome by clicking on the follow icon in the toolbar at the bottom of your screen or on the desktop

Different computers will have it in different places. For example on my computer I have it in my toolbar at the bottom of my screen.

2. When Google Chrome opens up, you can enter a website to go to in the "Address Bar" at the top of the screen.

Click into this address bar to start typing the website name. A good tip to know when you can type is by observing what your mouse is doing. Usually, your mouse has 3 different states or symbols that it can be depending on what action you're currently doing (see image below). When you're selecting an item or generally navigating a web page you have the "arrow" pointer. When you can enter text, you have this "I" pointer. If you move your mouse over the address bar you'll see that your mouse changes to an "I".

Rubber pointer

Beam pointer

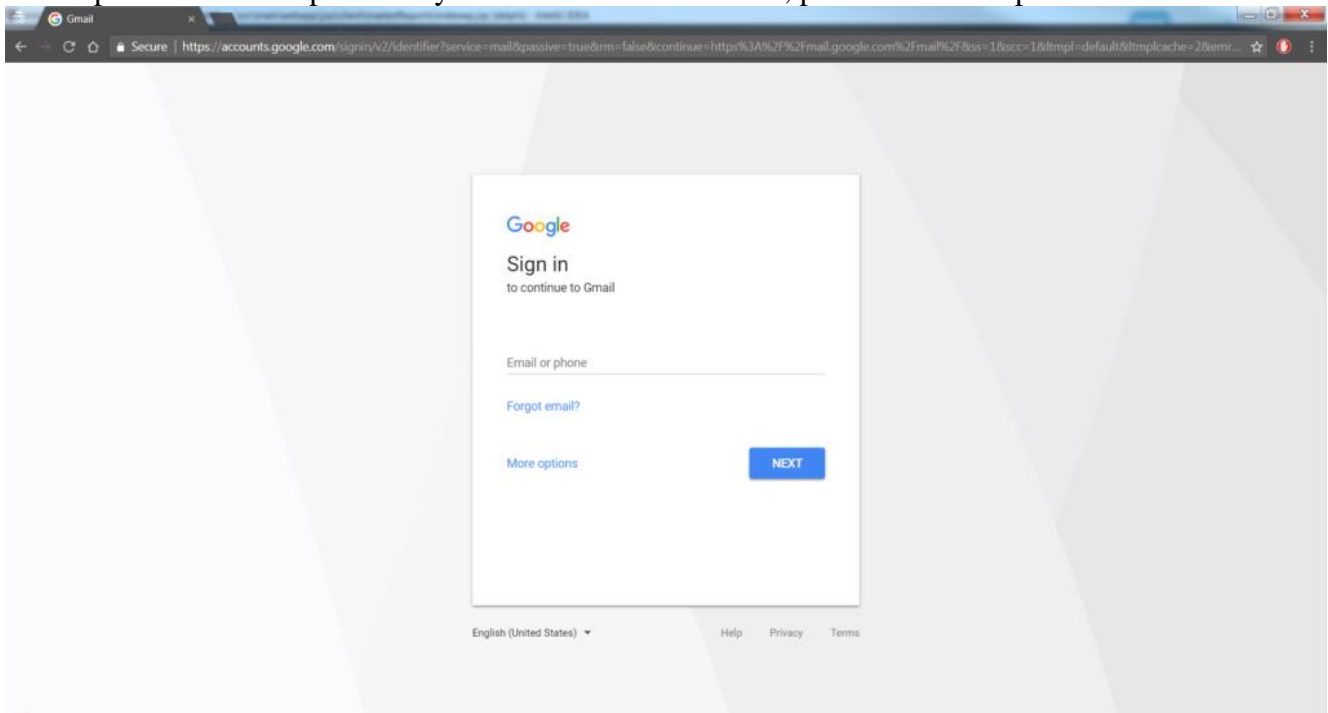

Arrow pointer

3. Type gmail.com and then press the "Enter" key on your keyboard
4. Usually, the first screen will open up if no other person has been using gmail before you. If you get this screen please follow steps 5-7. If you have the second screen, please follow steps 8-11

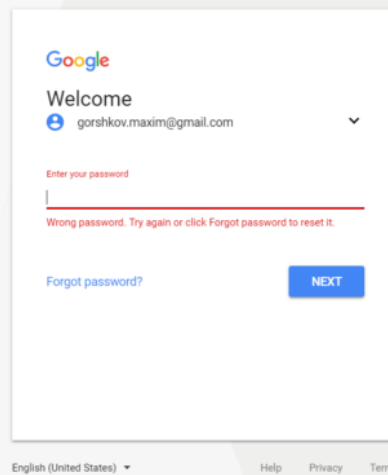

5. Click into the box where it says "Email or phone" and enter your email address. Click on the blue Next button
6. Click into the box where it says "Enter your password" and enter your password. Click on the next blue button. If you get the red text with "Wrong password...." please note that password and case sensitive which means that it must match exactly. Try your password again.

The screenshot shows the Google login interface. At the top is the Google logo. Below it, the text "Welcome" is displayed, followed by a blue plus icon and the email address "gorshkov.maxim@gmail.com" with a downward-pointing arrow. A text input field labeled "Enter your password" is present. Below the input field, there is a link for "Forgot password?" and a blue "NEXT" button. At the bottom of the page, there is a language selector set to "English (United States)", and links for "Help", "Privacy", and "Terms".

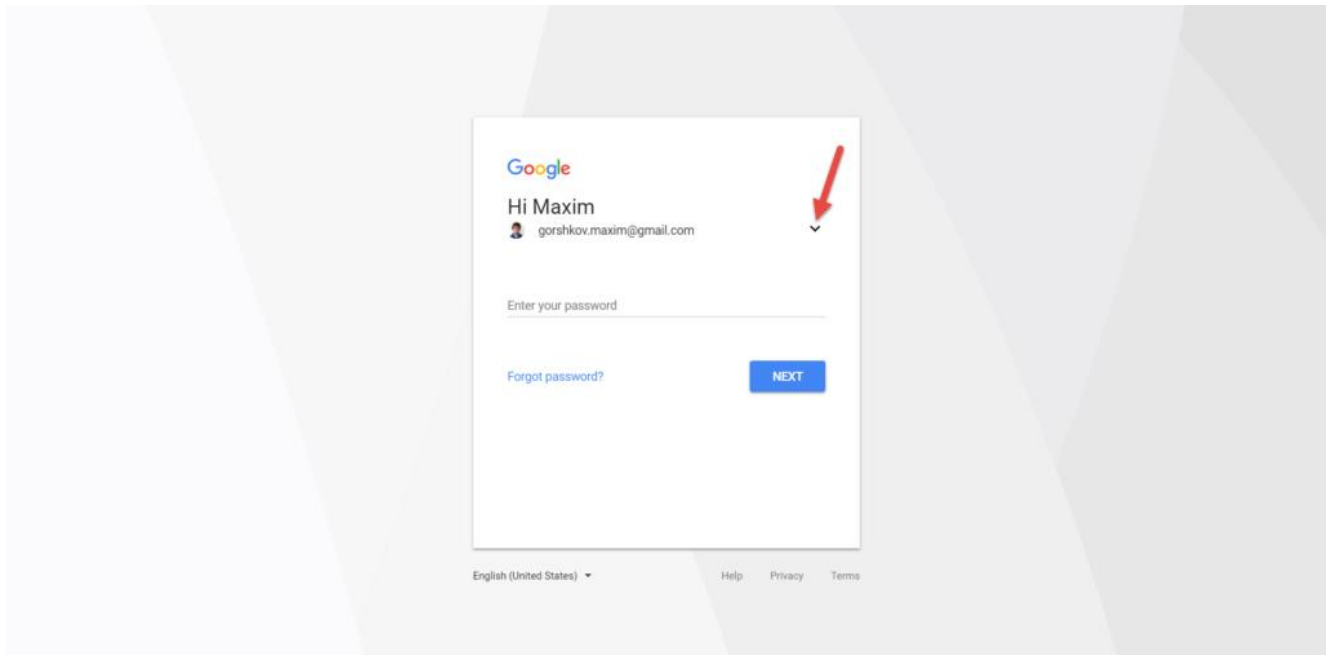

This screenshot shows the same Google login interface as above, but with a red error message. The "Enter your password" input field is highlighted with a red border. Below the input field, a red error message reads: "Wrong password. Try again or click Forgot password to reset it." The "Forgot password?" link and the blue "NEXT" button remain visible. The footer with the language selector and links is also present.

7. You're in!!
8. You may have either the first screen which has "Hi <Name>" with either your name or another account. If it's your account, great! You can just enter the password in the "Enter your password" box and click Next and you're all set. Otherwise, click on the arrow beside the email address.
